New England's Monthly Numismatic Catalog

NERCG Expands Return Privilege

New England Rare Coin Galleries has always had one of the most liberal return privileges in the numismatic world — because we know how important it is to give our customers adequate time to inspect their rare coin purchases. In fact, in today's market, with prices climbing more rapidly than ever before, an inspection period is extremely important. This is why we've decided to make our return privilege even more liberal than it's been in the past. So beginning this month, New England customers will have 45 days from the time they receive their coins to inspect them. If, for any reason, you are dissatisfied with a New England purchase, return it within those 45 days for a full refund or replacement.

In conjunction with our newly liberalized return privilege, New England is also expanding its authenticity guarantee. From now on, in the unlikely event that any non-authentic coin escapes our attention, we will refund the full purchase price of the coin plus 15% compound annual interest.

While you scan this month's Inventory Selections, we urge you to take special note of New England Rare Coin Auctions' ANA Catalog offer on page 15. The annual ANA convention is the most famous event of the numismatic year. And the 1979 ANA Auction, conducted by New England, will feature some particularly exquisite rarities: such as a 1930-S Indian Head Eagle in MS-65; an exceedingly rare 1819 5D/50 Early Half Eagle in AU-50 (only 5 specimens known); and an 1895 $20 Hawaiian Gold Piece in Proof-60 (the only specimen available for sale). Each of these highly desirable pieces, plus thousands more, have been beautifully cataloged in the 1979 ANA Auction Catalog. And this is the last time that you'll be able to order a copy through Inventory Selections. So we urge you to reserve your 1979 ANA Auction Catalog today.

The Gallery Window

A special series profiling

New England Rare Coin Galleries' numismatic experts.

Jay C. Miller

Jay Miller has been involved with coin collecting since early childhood. His father, a Los Angeles insurance executive, assembled a large collection of coins from pocket change. "That was back in the 1950's when everything was still circulating, so my father collected everything. He used his collection to make a downpayment on our house." But it wasn't until the early 1960's that Jay himself began collecting. "I met my uncle at an ANA convention. He was a full-time coin dealer and he showed me a roll of 1909-S VDB's. My eyes popped right out of my head."

The next few years found Jay's collecting interests expanding. He amassed a nearly complete set of Buffalo Nickels. He opened up a small coin supply business. And, in his "spare" time, he became interested in photography. In fact, it was Jay's photographic interests that eventually led him to enroll as a Communications major at Ohio State University. "Shortly after that I met NERCG's founder, Jim Halperin. Jim really liked my photography and my knowledge of coins." Jay soon found himself doing coin photography for Jim's firm. At the same time, Jay opened up a coin shop in nearby Framingham, Massachusetts. "The store business was great but it was at NERCG that my numismatic skills really developed. So when NERCG grew, I came aboard full time."

Jay's work at New England has been outstanding. He developed the firm's coin photography system, he has helped numerous collectors and investors in their rare coin pursuits and, recently, he created the Numismatic Price Index. "But when you come right down to it, everyone here at NERCG is outstanding. We're not just salesmen, we're professional numismatists. We know coins and we know the market. As far as today's rare coin market is concerned, the knowledge here is unequalled anywhere else."

Jay presently lives just a few miles south of Boston with his wife, Joanne. He still collects, and he likes working with all kinds of collectors and investors. "I'm just as proud to sell an 1883 No Cents Nickel as I am to put together a $25,000 investment package. I feel like every coin I sell is a part of my personal collection. And nothing pleases me more than when I send someone a coin and they call back and say, "That's great! That's just what I'm looking for!"

Providing For Your Family Through Rare Coins

Planning to pass your collection on to your children? There is only one way to guarantee that they'll receive your coins at the exact time and in the exact manner of your choosing.

Why a rare coin trust?

Many family heads set up trusts for their children — because providing security for loved ones is one of the greatest feelings in the world. Yet, few family heads think of placing rare coins in such funds. This is probably because the concept of funding a trust with rare coins is fairly new. But new or not, this concept certainly makes sense. After all, the purpose of establishing any kind of trust for your children is to leave them a financial gift they can rely on in later years. If rare coins' past performance is any indicator, rare coins are one of the best such gifts a parent can give. Historically, rare coins' long-term growth has been steady, reliable and rapid. Between 1968 and 1978, rare coins appreciated at an average annual compound rate of 20%. Between 1973 and 1978, their average annual compound appreciation reached 28.7%. And present indicators call for rare coin appreciation to climb even further in years to come.* This type of reliability and productivity over the long-term makes rare coins an ideal asset for inclusion in your family trust.

Of course, you could give rare coins to your children without the aid of a trust. Indeed, many collectors plan to do just that. They feel too attached to their collections to ever sell their coins themselves. So, they hope to one day pass on their coins to their children. Yet, in not establishing a formal trust through which to accomplish this, these collectors are taking a big risk. If they die before they can pass their coins on personally, any one of three scenarios could occur:

1. If a collector has no trust or will, his coins might go to his children immediately after his death. This could mean that the children receive the coins before they're ready to handle valuable assets (i.e. before the children reach maturity).
2. If a collector has no trust or will, his coins might not go to his children at all.
3. Even if a collector has a will (but no trust), his coins might be apportioned to his children in a manner he wouldn't have wished. This is because, in most states, before the collector's will can be executed, the collector's estate executors must pay an estate tax. To pay this tax, the executors are usually forced to dip into the estate's assets. Thus, the executors may liquidate part of the collector's coin collection, leaving only a fraction of that collection for the collector's offspring.

Only by establishing a trust fund can you guarantee that your coins will be passed on to your children at the exact time and in the exact manner of your choosing.

Your options

In theory, the mechanism by which a trust makes this guarantee is fairly simple. Basically, there are three parties involved in the trust: the grantor (in this case, the coin collector), the trustee (usually a bank or a close relative) and the beneficiary (here, the collector's child or children). In the case of a rare coin trust, the grantor would give the trustee rare coins and instruct the trustee regarding how long to hold the coins and when to pass them on to the beneficiary. The trustee would then carry out the grantor's wishes and, in return, receive nominal compensation for his services. And, as long as the grantor limits his gifts to not more than $3,000 per year ($6,000 if being given jointly by a husband and wife), he will not have to pay any gift taxes.

In practice, however, trusts are a bit more complex. Each state carries its own laws regarding the handling of trust funds, and each trustee services trust grantors a bit differently. Without expert help, you may find the process of establishing a trust bewildering. This is why interested collectors should initially speak with a trust officer at their local bank. Most trust officers will be glad to supply you with free general information on the various types of trusts available. Usually, trust officers will begin by telling you that, in choosing the type of trust that best suits your needs, you have three basic options:

OPTION 1 concerns whether you'd like an "intervivos" or "testamentary" trust. An intervivos trust is one which operates while the grantor is still alive. A testamentary trust begins with the death of the grantor.

OPTION 2 concerns whether you'd like a "revocable" or "irrevocable" trust. In a revocable trust, the grantor can alter trust provisions and regain the assets placed in the trust. With an irrevocable trust, the grantor relinquishes all rights to the trust assets.

OPTION 3 concerns whether your trust is to be funded or unfunded. In a funded trust, assets are placed in the trust at the time the trust is established. An unfunded trust includes no assets at the time it is established.

Choosing your options

Your decisions regarding which options to choose should depend upon your trust goals. For example, if your goal in establishing a rare coin trust is to set aside a specific portion of your present collection for your children, you might want to establish a intervivos irrevocable funded trust. This would mean that when you establish the trust, you place rare coins in it immediately (thus, it becomes funded) and renounce your ownership of those coins (irrevocable). The trustee then holds the coins until whatever time you specify as that time when the coins are to go to your children (intervivos — i.e. you've specified a particular time rather than the event of your death).

However, if your goal in establishing the trust is to have your collection given to your children upon your death, but in the meantime you'd like to buy and sell coins, you may choose a testamentary revocable unfunded trust. This means that, at the time you establish the trust, no coins are placed in it (it is unfunded), you can do anything you wish with your coins (the terms of the trust are revocable) and the trust provisions will not go into effect until your death (testamentary). When that event occurs, your coins will automatically be placed in the hands of the trustee and distributed to your children according to the trust provisions.

In addition to information about the types of trusts available, you should also ask your trust officer about trustee fees. Most banks charge (1) a fee for establishing the trust, (2) an annual fee for maintaining the trust (usually a small percentage of the trust's year-end value), and (3) fees for any special transactions that you might want the bank to execute on the trust's behalf. If you feel that your bank's fees are prohibitive, you might consider naming a close friend or relative as your trustee. Or you might choose a unfunded trust in order to cut costs. Unfunded trusts usually don't carry annual maintenance of "special transactions" fees.

Taking the first step

If, after talking with your trust officer, you feel that you'd like to establish a rare coin trust for your children, see your lawyer. (If you don't have a lawyer, your trust officer should be able to recommend one.) He'll help you draw up a "trust instrument." The instrument is simply a legal document identifying all of the trust provisions, including:

1. How and when your coins will be distributed to your children.

2. Who is to be your trustee.
3. Whether the trustee is to be compensated for his services and by how much.
4. How a successor trustee is to be appointed in the event that the original trustee cannot fulfill his obligations.
5. Under which state's jurisdiction the trust is to be executed.

After these provisions have been specified in writing and approved by both yourself and the trustee, your lawyer will register the trust in the state you've decided upon. Once that state approves your trust, it will go into effect.

From the moment it begins operating, your rare coin trust can be a source of great relief. It will ensure that the collection you've worked so diligently to assemble will eventually be given to your children in an equitable, carefully planned manner. It will also assure your offspring a reliable, rapidly appreciating source of funds once they reach maturity.

Market Report

by Tim LaPointe

At the shows

Choice type coins are still extremely hard to locate no matter where you look. For example, at the recent Long Beach Coin & Stamp Convention (held May 31-June 3), any buyer who hesitated to immediately snap up choice type specimens soon found himself out of luck. There were several instances where buyers examined high-quality specimens, hesitated in deciding whether the price was right, and then returned to buy, only to find that the coins they'd examined had already been sold. By the time Long Beach ended, most buyers felt as if the number of actual purchases had been few. But when the total dollar amount of transactions at Long Beach was finally tallied, it was evident that a lot of money had exchanged hands there.

Gold

Gold bullion prices rose from $250 per ounce in April to a high of $277 last month. Currently, prices are in the low $270's. But this slight decrease hasn't slowed gold coinage trading (probably because $270 is still a premium price for gold). Swiss banks are still buying back $20 gold pieces from American dealers and, as we predicted last month, buy-back prices have risen well above $400, with MS-60 $20's realizing prices significantly higher than $440. This has fueled frantic gold buying this month at shows and in private transactions between dealers and collectors. For instance, a 1910-D Indian Head Half Eagle in Mint State traded hands at the recent Georgia Numismatic Association Convention (held May 18-20) for a mid-four-figure amount. At Long Beach, every sort of gold piece, from common-date to super-scarce, was selling. An MS-67 Panama-Pacific $50 Gold Piece sold for just above $20,000. Choice Indian Head Eagles (when truly choice specimens can be located) were being priced at between $1,000 and $1,500. A pair of 1907 High Relief St. Gaudens Double Eagles (one wire-rimmed, the other flat) was offered for $37,500. Prices like these indicate the market's steadfast confidence in gold coinage.

Silver

Silver bullion prices dipped slightly this month to $8.40 per ounce. However, the tremendous demand for nice silver type coins remains strong. In fact, it has become almost impossible to buy choice silver coinage even at bid prices quoted in recent issues of Coin Dealer Newsletter. Our buyers report that most choice silver is selling at about 50% over bid.

Other news

Jefferson Nickel rolls have gone down in price slightly, although choice Jeffersons are still bringing premium prices. A 1943/2 Jefferson in MS-67, for example, sold recently for $1,500.

Nice common-date Copper-Nickel, Flying Eagle and Indian Cents in MS-65 have increased in price, but other copper activity remains stable.

New England Rare Coin Auctions' plans for the 1979 A.N.A. Auction are shaping up beautifully. Many choice rarities that may never be offered again have already been cataloged — such as a Panama-Pacific 50¢ "S-less" Gold Piece (1 of only 2 struck) in Proof-65, an exceedingly rare 1839-O Bust Half Dollar in Proof-63, and one of the 2 Roosevelt Inaugural Medals struck in 1941.

At a convention a few months back, I overheard a dealer telling a collector about a complete set of "white cents" that he had. At first, I thought he was talking about toning but later I saw "white cents" used in another dealer's ad as if it was a generic term. Is it a generic term? — B.B., New York, NY

"White cents" refers to Flying Eagle Cents and Indian Head Cents minted between 1857 and 1864. These coins were 88% copper and 12% nickel. After 1857, the amount of copper in the coins was increased to 95% and the amount of nickel reduced to 5%. Because the earlier small cents had 7% more nickel than their successors, early small cents were said to contain a relatively high amount of "white" metal — hence the term "white cents."

Last March, I reached a point where I was frustrated with collecting. It seemed that every series worth collecting was almost impossible to complete and every series that I could complete wasn't worth collecting. Then one of my friends told me that Indian $2½'s are both valuable and easy to complete. Do you think he's right? — G.W., Boulder, CO

The Indian Head Quarter Eagle series is, as a whole, very collectable. Most dates had total mintage figures of between 400,000 and 500,000 pieces. Yet, if you're looking for value, your best bet is to collect only choice, uncirculated Indian Quarter Eagles — and, as with any truly valuable coin, such specimens are fairly challenging to acquire. Their number makes up only a small fraction of the series' total mintage. But don't let the challenge discourage you. Any truly worthwhile endeavor takes a bit of time and we think you'll find that the extra time spent in hunting for choice Indian Quarter Eagles will more than pay off in your overall collecting satisfaction as well as in the total value of your collection.

We should mention, by the way, that not all dates in the Indian Head Quarter Eagle series have mintages of between 400,000 and 500,000. One date, the 1911-D, only had total mintage of 55,680. This is the rarest Indian and, when located in uncirculated condition, a true numismatic prize. Coincidentally, it is also the most valuable Indian Quarter Eagle and choice specimens consistently sell for premium prices. (Note: Several counterfeit 1911-D's are known to exist. True 1911-D's usually have a partial wire rim on the obverse from 12:00 to 3:00 and are weakly struck at the mintmark. If you are ever in doubt as to the authenticity of a 1911-D, take it to a professional numismatist.)

I have a few coins I was thinking of selling through auction, but I was wondering how valuable coins have to be before they can be consigned. — B.D., Tampa Bay, FL

Any coin, no matter what its value, can be consigned to auction. However, not every coin should be consigned. In general, coins that will excite buyers produce the best results. These are usually coins of extremely high quality, or collections of coins that are somehow "complete." The more exciting your coins are, the more attention they'll attract on the auction floor — hence, the better your chances of realizing high prices.

I've always wondered why the Early Dollar series was so short-lived. They were only minted from 1794 to 1803. And why was there such a big gap between this series and Seated Dollars? — B.F., Tecumseh, MI

Yes, the Early Dollars series was very short-lived — but not quite as short-lived as you've indicated. Records from the U.S. Mint state that the last Early Dollars (approximately 19,500) were minted in 1804. Curiously, however, no Early Dollars dated 1804 are known to have ever existed (aside from the famous re-strikes — only 15 of which are known and all of which are believed to have been specially produced for collectors between 1834 and 1860). This is probably due to the fact that in the early 1800's, it was Mint policy to use dies for as long as they lasted. Numismatic historians believe, therefore, that the Early Dollars minted in 1804 were produced using 1803 dies. This would mean that the lifespan of the Early Dollar series was 11 years rather than 10.

The premature discontinuation of the Early Dollar series was due to a direct order from Secretary of the Treasury Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson had learned that silver speculators were exporting Early Dollars in huge quantities. Such exportation of U.S. coinage was counter to the government's purpose in producing it. So Jefferson ordered the minting of silver dollars stopped. 36 years later, silver dollar coinage resumed in the United States due to a law passed in 1837 which had completely revised mint procedure and production.

In your May, 1979 catalog, you state that the Guinness Book of World Records lists the $7 million Redfield purchase as the largest single numismatic transaction in history, but I believe that both you and the Guinness Book are mistaken. I believe that Louis Eliasberg's purchase of the Clapp collection was the largest. — F.C., Woodside, NY

At the time Louis Eliasberg purchased the John H. Clapp collection, the transaction was the largest single numismatic purchase in history. However, that purchase was only for $100,000. The initial $7 million purchase of the LaVere Redfield collection is currently the reigning "champion" of numismatic transactions. However, if interest in rare coinage continues growing at its present exponential rate, we wouldn't be surprised if even that transaction was topped sometime in the not-too-distant future.

The LaVere Redfield Collection

In 1974, a handful of government agents made an amazing numismatic discovery. Tucked away in the basement of a huge mansion sat the world's largest collection of U.S. silver dollars. 407,283 coins. 85% were uncirculated. Most were Morgan Dollars. All had been owned by the late multi-millionaire LaVere Redfield.

Now, New England is offering a choice selection of exquisite Redfield Morgan Dollars to our customers. And to ensure your satisfaction with any of these coins you may choose, we've extended our normal 45-day return privilege to 6 months! If, for any reason, you are not satisfied with your Redfield Dollars, return them within 6 months for a full refund or replacement.

Our Complete Numismatic Services

1. Guarantees

☐ Grading

We guarantee that coins purchased from New England Rare Coin Galleries are graded accurately. They will meet our high standards whenever you decide to sell them. If you sell them to us, we guarantee to purchase them at the same grade as they were when originally purchased from us.

Our grading system is patterned after that of the American Numismatic Association. Developed in 1978, the A.N.A. System is rapidly being adopted by virtually the entire professional numismatic community. Its designations are:

Poor.....	1
Fair.....	2
About Good.....	3
Good.....	4,5
Very Good.....	8,10
Fine.....	12,15
Very Fine.....	20,25,30,35
Extremely Fine.....	40,45
About Uncirculated.....	50,55,58
Mint State.....	60,63,64,65,66,67,69,70
Proof.....	60,63,65,67,69,70

Slash grades indicate obverse/reverse designations. For example, a grade of 65/63 describes a coin with an obverse of Mint State 65 and a reverse of Mint State 63.

☐ Authenticity

We further guarantee that all coins sold by New England Rare Coin Galleries are authentic. To protect our customers, and as proof of our certainty that no altered or counterfeit coin can escape our attention, we guarantee to refund the full purchase price plus 15% compound annual interest, on any non-authentic coin acquired from us.

☐ Documentation

These guarantees are issued in writing with all coins purchased from New England Rare Coin Galleries. Each written guarantee is personally endorsed by two professional numismatists.

☐ Satisfaction

If, for any reason, you are not satisfied with your purchases, you may return them within 45 days of the date you received them for a full refund or replacement.
